To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great privilege that I write this letter of recommendation. It is pertinent to any reader to understand my career background to lend enhanced credibility to my opinion. Over the last 40 years, I have developed and contracted for construction of 8 million square feet of commercial space. In addition, I have contracted one ground up and one extensive remodel/renovation of personal home projects. It is within this context of experience that I would whole heartedly recommend the Finbro "Team" for any custom home construction.

Our home in Telluride is 12 months into an eighteen month contract schedule and is still on time and below budget. The design and structure are very complex.

Finbro's preconstruction services which thoroughly vetted and scrubbed the architectural/engineering drawings were the most thorough I have observed in my career. These preconstruction services required intensive professional collaboration with the project architect Tommy Hein & Associates and the engineering stakeholders. These very objective efforts resulted in significant cost savings, aligned all stakeholders' interest and greatly influenced the smooth execution of the construction experience so far including a minimum of unanticipated change orders.

Throughout the construction process, I have been very impressed with Finbros' ability to anticipate potential conflicting issues in advance and offer reasonable solutions. Finbro accomplishes its tasks in a timely manner with an energetic accommodating positive 'Can Do' attitude.

Finbros' monthly payment request package is very thorough. The construction lender, Wells Fargo has complimented the package for its organizational structure and supporting detail which hastens the monthly payment request approval process.

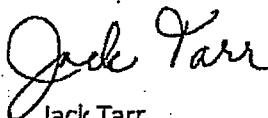

The job site supervision has been very effective, knowledge driven and professionally conducted in every manner.

Finbros' knowledge of the local construction culture, subcontractors, government agencies and vendors is unparalleled and has been very instrumental in helping to navigate the potential land mines encountered during construction.

After interviewing no fewer than eight contractors, I had 'initially' chosen another highly recommended contractor in Telluride to perform preconstruction services and obtain bids for our home that candidly was not a good experience. However, during my second round of bidding it became very apparent that the Finbro approach to the construction 'process' resulted in an exponentially more positive outcome than my first bid process.

The Finbro team is knowledgeable and of the highest integrity. I would use Finbro again without hesitation. I would welcome any questions of more detail than one could cover in a letter. Please feel free to call me at (949) 240-2482.

Respectfully submitted,

To Whom It May Concern:

My wife, Liz, and I are very happy to provide this letter of recommendation for Werner Catsman and all of Finbro Construction.

We are currently in the process of building our home in Mountain Village, with Tommy Hein as the architect and Finbro as the general contractor. We spent considerable time reviewing both architect and GC options, and we are delighted with the team we have built. Tommy has designed us a home that will truly be one of a kind, unique among MV homes, and suited in every respect to our individual needs. The catch is, of course, that individuality of that sort can drive the price through the roof (even with careful planning) and create construction nightmares for the GC.

Finbro has been terrific to work with in meeting the goals of high quality, schedule maintenance, and value engineering. Right from the beginning, Werner and Dylan worked closely with Tommy and his team to make sure that a beautiful design was also practical to build and fit within our budget. They offered alternatives in design and materials when originally planned features proved impractical and then took it on themselves to be sure that Tommy was comfortable with these changes.

Since we are not living in Telluride currently, we were particularly nervous about whether Finbro could follow our instructions without us present. This has turned into a great relationship. Werner, Robin, and the rest of the team communicate with us daily—yes, daily—by means of their website about construction progress. We can attend to these details as much or as little as we like. For truly important issues, we hear from Werner directly. As a result, we truly feel that our instructions are being followed, options are being weighed and chosen carefully, and the inevitable glitches are handled easily.

Finally, to the matter of trust. From our first meeting with Steve Finger to this day, we have ranked this as our highest priority, and Finbro has earned our highest praise. They are straightforward, honest, and open. They treat their employees and contractors professionally and fairly. They are true advocates for our goals, and on countless occasions have brought to our attention problems and then worked with us to solve them when we might never have noticed them in the first place.

These folks are the real deal. We look forward to moving to Telluride and counting Steve, Werner, Dylan, Robin, and the rest among our new friends.
